FIRM RESPONSIBILITIES

Partner and Architect, Brett leads the VMWP Denver office, overseeing multi-family urban housing projects from schematic design through construction administration. His roles in the firm encompass Project Architect, Project Manager, and team leader. As a Project Architect, Brett has led many multi-family housing teams of various architectural projects including urban housing, mixed-use, multi-family affordable housing, single-family residential, educational, commercial, and historical preservation. He focuses his time on quality sustainable urban and affordable housing in the Denver, Colorado regions, most recently, AVi at Olde Town, Crossing Pointe North & South in Thornton and 32nd and Shoshone affordable housing projects. As team leader, Brett is known for keeping a project team on task and on schedule through clear communication with client and his design team. Efficiency in housing keeps costs down, and Brett guides his team to better design and productivity, keeping the project on budget.
